Dual Enrollment Courses

English 121 is an introductory writing course in which students learn to create college-level essays. Throughout the semester, students engage in a writing process and learn strategies for composing and revising. Class time is focused on learning about academic essays and applying that knowledge in writing.

College Success Seminar CSSC-105 is a course intended for students who are considering their academic and career pathways. It is particularly recommended for first-year students who are undecided about their major or are considering transfer pathways. This course is designed to promote academic self-efficacy through the identification and development of academic and career plans. Students will participate in research, discussion, and reflection as well as learn to adopt and present an evidence-based stance, and preview careers in practice.

Taught by RBR staff on
RBR campus
